JEALOUSY is a quality possessed to too great an extent by our leaders. It is blasting some of our fondest prospects of success.

If statements accredited to him are true, Secretary CARLISLE is a monumental blunderer in the position he now occupies.

The Republican Party has certainly demonstrated to the country that the Democratic Party can't successfully run the government.

HUMILITY is one of the most potent signs of Christianity. The latter is always accompanied by the former and may be seen in every true believer.

SOME folks are always listening for something detrimental to other folks, forgetting that those other folks know much that is discreditable to them.

If heaven is the place of eternal rest, and it is, it is surprising how few people care about going there just now. They'd rather stay here and work.

ATTORNEY GENERAL OLNEY knows his business. He was employed by the rail road syndicates before he accepted office and he has faithfully stood by them since he came into power.

We have known all along that Miss IDA B. WELLS was not employed by western syndicates to discredit the South and thereby promote immigration to their section, but we repeatedly declared that this would be the logical result.

Her motives were the best and the punishment to the South will be unusually severe. Lynch-law must go!

The Democrats in the Senate and the House are as yet disagreeing upon the Tariff Bill and it would seem that this condition of affairs will continue until the adjournment of Congress.

If the November elections do not result in an overwhelming Republican victory, we shall be greatly surprised.

MISS WELLS AND HER MISSION.

The tireless attacks of Miss IDA B. WELLS upon that hydra-headed monster, American lynch-law is bearing rich fruit and croakers who were disposed to discountenance her methods cannot but fall to see that she is hewing to the right line.

Colored men have been skinned alive and left to die. Colored women have been hatched into insensibility. Colored men have been burned at the stake while mobs of white men, in the name of justice, composed of women and children have danced in ghouliah glee.

It is possible that the Christian people of the world are to remain silent when such outrages are being perpetrated?

Thank God, all Christendom is being aroused and it will not be long ere the cry will girdle the globe that lynch-law must go! Lynch-law must go!

RACE JOURNALS AND JOURNALISTS.

Journals devoted to the interest of the colored race are doing herculean service.

It is needless to disparage their efforts or frown on account of their humble appearance. They have their influence and a mission.

When they are faithfully kept in the proper channel and express truly the wishes of their constituency, naught but good can result.

The press has always been a powerful and has ever been the most powerful and effective weapon of the oppressed. When its use has been discontinued, the people it represented always lose ground, and finally drift into a galling subjection to other nations and races, who may be more favorably situated.

People who expect impossibilities of the race-editor or clamor for more rapid advancement in a journal's progress, while at the same time, they fail to contribute to their support should not be noticed and the race-loving element should be sought after.

We, as journalists, knowing the sacrifices we are making and the disappointments to which we are subjected deserve the sympathy and support of all race-lovers who should not fail to give their means, and speak words of consolation in our behalf.

THE NEW ELECTION LAW.

The recent election at Harrisonburg, Va. resulted in the election of a Democrat, Mr. SWITZER, Mayor, and a Republican, Mr. D. S. LEWIS, treasurer.

The contest was conducted under the provisions of the new law, which was enacted with a view to further disfranchising the colored people in the black counties.

In a letter to the Richmond, Va. DAILY TIMES, Treasurer LEWIS, under date of July 28th, says:

"The law itself affords every opportunity for the grossest fraud. Our special constable is an exceptionally honest man, and did his duty according to the law, as he construed it, but by his wrong construction, about fifty colored voters were disfranchised. As I said before, owing to the honesty of the constable little or no money was used, which was a great improvement over some of our former elections, but with the one constable provision and with a dishonest constable, the use of money can be made a hundred times more dangerous than ever before, for the party who has the constable can buy all the boaters, for they cannot be divided and this made less dangerous."

He adds:

"I do not speak from the standpoint of a disappointed office seeker, having been elected by a majority of one hundred and thirty-seven in a total vote of five hundred and seventy-three, and my vote being largely in excess of any other candidate."

The situation is concisely stated. When the bosses choose to give a fair return they do so, and when the situation is regarded as desperate they change accordingly and a majority their way can be rendered.

The idea is to work the law fairly, in white counties, and unfairly in black ones.

Truly the ways of some of these Democratic politicians are at times past finding out.

THAT JOHN BROWN MONUMENT.

The Richmond, Va., DISPATCH and other democratic journals seem to have grown red in the face and are gesticulating so wildly that one would suspect them of having the St. Vitus Dance.

The cause of this is the announcement that a monument is to be erected to the patriot and martyr, JOHN BROWN.

These journals have gone so far as to threaten the railroad company which donated the site. This is a peculiar situation of affairs. And yet we know of no law against the erection of a monument even to an alleged traitor.

These blatant journals would deny to others a privilege which they arrogate to themselves. It is a well-known fact that many northerners have regarded the leaders of the late Confederacy as traitors, and regarded it as a mistake that legislation prohibiting the erection of monuments to their memory upon American soil was not enacted, yet there were many others who held the opposite view and regarded such a proposition as a threatened encroachment upon the rights and privileges of an American citizen.

It seems strange then that some Southerners should be so narrow-minded as to raise a hue and cry against this old man, whose hand is forever stilled, tongue forever silenced, but whose soul is marching on.

That JOHN BROWN, by his action precipitated the War of the Rebellion, which in turn resulted in the abolishment of slavery, no one who is rightly acquainted with the truths of history will gain-say or deny.

It has been declared by Southerners that the obliteration of slavery was a blessing and the condition of the past, they were glad to say had gone never to return. Then why pursue further with obloquy the memory of this humble old man? Do monuments to Mr. JEFFERSON DAVIS, GEN. ROBERT E. LEE, with numbers of others connected with the "Lost Cause" does not revive sectional feeling, necessitating constitutional enactments by the national government prohibiting the same, why should a monument to JOHN BROWN?

No, no, gentlemen, you may attempt to cover with disgrace, smear with dishonor this grand old man; you may deny to us the privilege of rearing to his memory a modest shaft, but, sirs, in our hearts is already anshired a living Monument which shall last until the race to which we belong has been obliterated and all traces of it lost upon the plains of time.

JOHN BROWN was a traitor you say, but he was not a coward. The men who perished with him witnessed his heroic example before he passed away. His prophecies were fulfilled.

Never will be forgotten the scene on that ill-fated day, when with firm tread, he welcomed death and on his way to the scaffold stopped and kissed the little black child, showing his love for the race of which it was a typical representative.

JOHN BROWN gave his life for the cause he advocated. He never led thousands of innocent men into a conflict, deluged a land with the blood of the guiltless, separated husband from wife, son from mother, lover from sweet-heart, many of whom are never to meet again until the sounding of the last trumpet. He never made vacant the place at the hearth-stone and lived to see the misery which his actions had precipitated.

He never defended slavery. He loved mankind. He was the servant of humanity. A monument to him should be built and the art of the sculptor should be invoked in his behalf and as the sunlight's rays play upon this silent witness of this old man's self-sacrifice, black children could find no better pastime than to lip their prayers in the locality where it stands.

Earth cannot injure this grand old man, but heaven has no doubt long since rewarded him for his fidelity to our cause.

Let each swear this day that his memory shall be forever kept green in our hearts. For our part, may our right hand forget its cunning and our tongue cleave to the roof of our mouth ere we forget or forsake even the memory of old JOHN BROWN who so heroically offered up his life in behalf of our cause.

Sleep on, old man, sleep on, until the morning of the general resurrection when the secrets of all hearts shall be made manifest, the right exalted and God shall wipe all of the tears from your eyes.

Well says MACKAY:

The man is thought a knave or fool, Or bigot plotting crime, Who, for the advancement of his race, Is wiser than his time.

For him the hemlock shall distill,

For him the axe be bared; For him the gibbet shall be built; For him the stake prepared. Him shall the scorn and wrath of all Pursue with deadly aim; And malice, envy, spite and hate, Shall persecute his name. But truth shall conquer at the last. For round and round we run, And ever the right comes uppermost. And ever is justice done.

Mingle their Woes.
